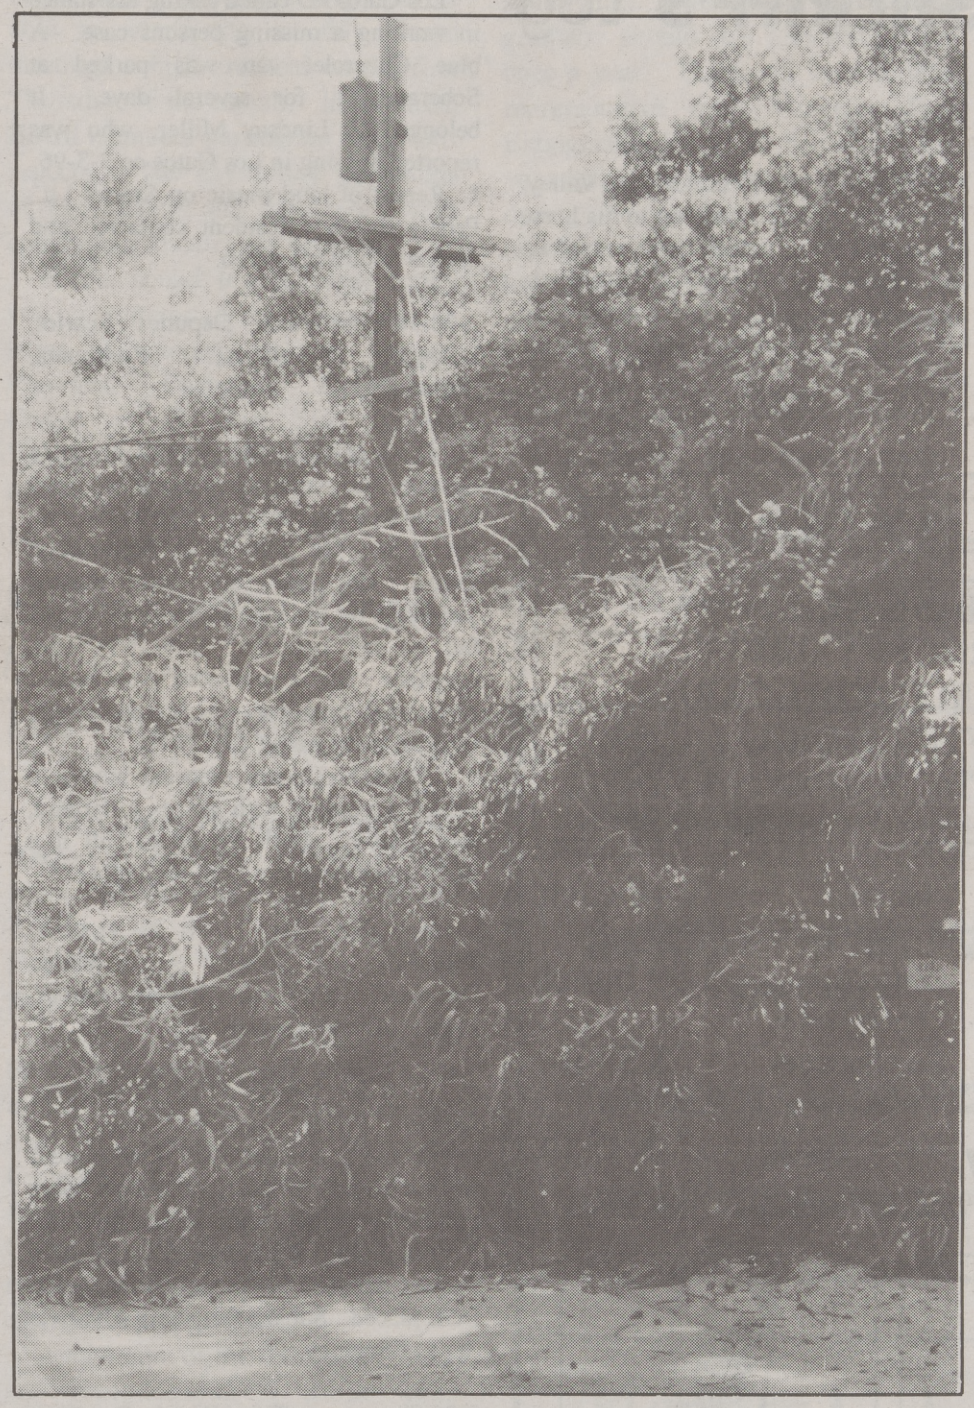
Tree Wins Battle With Power Lines in Carmel Valley

At 8:30 a.m. this past Saturday, while March was trying to sneak out like a lamb, a eucalyptus tree on Laurel Drive decided to prune itself and send limbs crashing into the power lines and across the road. Power was lost in the Village until approximately 10:40 a.m.

The Highway Patrol was on the scene for two hours before the arrival of PG&E and the County truck. Once there, it took just 10 minutes to restore power, but the road remained blocked until almost 1 o'clock.

The CHP officer commented that a local resident said that he had called both PG&E and the County 3 times about the tree, which was leaning and appeared likely to fall. Both agencies said the tree was okay up to the last call the day before the fall. Fortunately, no one was passing the spot as the tree crashed to the ground.



PG&E and CalTrans workers, supported by other public safety personnel spent over two hours restoring power to a substantial portion of Carmel Valley when a Eucalyptus tree collasped a span of overhead power lines. photo -CVS Staff

The Sun's School Board Report

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Carmel Unified School District (CUSD) Board of Education held its regular meeting on March 28 at the Carmel Middle School Library.

The CUSD Board accepted the retirement requests of Jean Harnish, Carmel High School secretary to the Principal, and MaryKay Morris, a teacher at Carmel High School. The CUSD Board also accepted the resignation of Kristen Tibbits, a teacher at Carmel Middle School.

Frank Hathaway donated $1,500 in computer equipment for use at Captain Cooper School. Dennis Hocevar donated $800 in computer software and books to the River School Library. Richard Pryor of BIZTECH Shipping and Copy Center donated a video cart and overhead projector to Carmel High School. Skip Marquard donated assorted equipment valued at $1,950 to the Carmel High School track program.

Jeanne Fletcher, a Carmel Valley High School teacher, was named the Certified Employee of the Month and Paul Kampe was named the Classified Employee of the Month by the CUSD Board.

The next regular Carmel Unified School District Board of Education meeting will be held on April 18 at 7:00 PM at the River School Library; the meeting is open to the public.

Pebble Beach Sponsors Annual Seal Protection Mural

School children and teachers from throughout Monterey County joined local dignitaries and officials with the Pebble Beach Company and the SPCA of Monterey County to dedicate 35 painted panels, designed to help protect harbor seals and their pups. The dedication ceremony took place Wednesday, April 3, at Cypress Lookout in Pebble Beach.

Speakers at the ceremony included Lone Cyress Company Vice President Akio Fujiwara, Pebble Beach Company Vice President Ed Brown and Monterey County Supervisor Edith Johnsen.

Nearly a thousand area youngsters took part in a painting project that created the panels that have specially made peepholes so visitors can view the harbor seals without disturbing them.

"Over the last several years, we have seen how much the panels have done for both the seals and the children," said Gene Fryberger, Pebble Beach Company ecologist. "The seals now have the privacy they need to care for their pups and the kids have a unique opportunity to both learn about these creatures and play a major role in protecting them.

"Mother harbor seals have already begun arriving along the Pebble Beach shoreline, in fact, as we dedicate these panels, some expectant harbor seals

Cachagua Country Faire needs donations and volunteers

The Seventh Annual Cachagua Country Faire will be held Saturday, May 18, 1996 at the Cachagua Community Center. The annual event is the major fund raiser for the Cachagua Firefighters Association, Cachagua Community center and the Cachagua Area Property Owners Association, which are non-profit organizations.

Every year the Faire has grown and become a greater success than the year before. There will be a barbecue, food and craft booths, children's games, horseshoe tournament, music, live and silent auction, raffle and much more.

Organizers are asking for help. You can donate items for the raffle, live or silent auction. You may also make a cash donation which will be used to purchase an item in your name.

Please contact Nanci Lambert at 659-4947 as soon as possible. Your support in donating items or services will be greatly appreciated and will benefit the community.

Cachagua Community Center seeks two New Board Members

The Cachagua Community center is looking for volunteers to fill two existing vacancies on the Board of Directors. Board members maintain, operate and oversee the budget for the 15 acre Cachagua Community Park for use by Cachagua residents. In addition, the Board plans for the long term development for recreational and community uses at the park, in cooperation with the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District.

Formed in 1986, the Cachagua Community Center has worked with the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District and the County of Monterey to purchase the park property and to develop the many recreational features enjoyed by area residents. Now in its 10th year, the Board is looking for two residents of the area to join in the success in overseeing the park and community center for Cachagua area residents. Interested individuals must reside in the Cachagua area and be able to attend the monthly Board meetings, which are held on the first Thursday of the month. In addition, Board members participate in various aspects of the day-to-day operations of the facility and also work with committees to carry out projects.

If this sound like an opportunity you are interested in, please send a letter of interest to Joel Panzer, President, Cachagua Community Center, P. O. Box 512, Carmel Valley, Ca. 93924. The positions will be filled by May 2, 1996.

Sunday is the Annual CHERP Alert in The Highlands

The Carmel Highlands Emergency Response Program (CHERP) has sponsored the Cherp Alert program. Residents of the Carmel Highlands Fire Protection District, are de facto members of Cherp.

Sunday, April 7, 1996 will be the third Semi-Annual Cherp Alert. That means that at noon you will hear the emergency warning siren on top of the Carmel Highlands Fire Station. It will sound for approximately one minute. Upon hearing the siren, Highlands residents are reminded to check their emergency preparedness.

A minimum of the following checks are recommended: check your disaster supplies (guidelines are available at the fire station or the American Red Cross Chapter house in Carmel.). Check the battery in your smoke alarm (if you don't have one, you can get one at the fire station). Check your water (you should have at least a three day supply of water for everyone in your household, including pets). One gallon of water per day per person is the standard recommendation. The water should be changed periodically.

Check your fire extinguisher (shake them to keep the dry chemical from solidifying). All your fire extinguishers should be serviced about once a year. There will be a service representative from Monterey Fire Extinguisher Co. at the fire station for your convenience from noon to 2 p.m. during the autumn Cherp Alert if enough people show an interest in having this service provided. If you don't have a fire extinguisher, you may purchase one at a discounted price at that time. Review your First Aid and CPR skills.

If you haven't been trained recently, give the gift of life to your loved ones and consider becoming trained. Contact the American Red cross at 624-6921 for classes, or call Mark Angel at 624-7265 for private lessons in the comfort of your own home or business.

Review and practice your family home evacuation plan and fire escape plan. Confirm and check your family's out-of-state emergency contact number.

If you have any questions about any of the above recommendations, contact Cindy Negai at the Carmel Highlands Fire Station 624-2374.

Sam Karas now offers an internet address

Fifth District Supervisor Sam Karas, whose district includes unincorporated areas of Carmel, Carmel Valley, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Big Sur, and Pebble Beach announced that he may be contacted by the public at his Internet address.

Constituents are asked to include their mailing address and phone number in their messages. To contact Supervisor Karas, send e-mail to mocosd5@ix.netcom.com.

All Monterey County residents are welcome to contact their Supervisor with their concerns and/or comments.

Printer Offers Educational Tours for Students

ColorAd Printers has announced a new community program which involves working with area schools. They are offering educational tours of their state-of-the-art printing facility located at 5 Mandeville Ct., Ryan Ranch Business Park, in Monterey.

The program starts with an introduction to off-set printing, followed by a guided tour of the various departments including the press room and bindery.

The tour takes about one hour and is best with a group of 10 to 15 students.

Participating schools are eligible for donations of paper as it becomes available. ColorAd has recently made donations to All Saints School, Robert Louis Stevenson School and Carmel Middle School.

For further information on this on-going program call Mary Wells at 375-6890.

Crime Stats Take a Radical Drop Says Sheriff Hicks

Sheriff Norman G. Hicks announced that crime in the unincorporated areas of the County, compared to the five year average since 1990, appears to show a trend towards a decrease in homicides (-40%), rape (-23%), larcenies (-4%), and burglaries (-6%), while the County areas experienced an increase in aggravated assaults (+2%), simple assaults (+22%), and robberies (+5%).

Hicks says these figures are consistent with the changing focus on community awareness and involvement, and indicate a greater confidence in the way people are observing and reporting crime.

The substantial increase in simple assaults reflects a change in policy by the reporting of such assaults within the jail that previously were not reported in the County statistics.

SPCA Out to Sell First Aid Kits for Pets to Raise Money

If your companion was injured, would you have the necessary items to offer immediate first aid to your pet?

The SPCA of Monterey County now has for sale Pet First Aid kits, which contain emergency care items, as well as a guide for treating animals in an emergency.

Pet first aid kits contain a pet first aid guide, cold pack, iodine ointment, tape, antibiotic ointment, bandages, eye irrigator, scissors, rectal thermometer, tweezers and other items need to care for sick or injured animals. The kits come in a container and sell for $23.95, larger kits sell for $32.95, at the SPCA shelter's Pampered Pet Shop on Highway 68.

Proceeds from the sales of these first aid kits directly benefit the SPCA of Monterey County, a donor-supported humane society which relies on the generosity of givers to support its many programs. For information about SPCA programs, contact Maia Carroll 422-3721 or 373-2631, ext. 231.

5th District Wants Volunteers for Health Commission

Fifth District Supervisor Sam Karas is seeking a volunteer who lives in the Fifth District to fill a vacancy on Monterey County's Mental Health Commission. The Commission consists of 16 members appointed by the Board of Supervisors. The Commission reviews community mental health needs and services and makes an annual report to the supervisors. Members serve for three year terms.

The Commission meets on the last Wednesday of the month at 5 p.m. at the Health Department multi-purpose room at 19065 Portola Drive, Suite L, Salinas.

Interested persons residing in the Fifth District (Carmel, Carmel Valley, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Big Sur, Pebble Beach) are encouraged to send a letter and resume by April 15, 1996 by mail, fax 647-7695 or e-mail (mocosd5@ix.netcom.com), stating their desire to serve, including home address and day time telephone number to Supervisor Sam Karas, 1200 Aguajito Road, Suite 001, Monterey, Ca. 93940.

Lay Off the Layoff Blues

by Andrew Bender

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

One of the big issues of late has been the prevalence of massive employee layoffs, often accompanied by reports of sharply increased benefits for corporate executives.

Large scale layoffs are nothing new - a fact which doesn't make the situation any better of course for those affected. But it's important to at least recognize that they have occurred for many decades if not centuries, although some of the current layoff figures admittedly seem bigger than ever.

For our purpose here, let's overlook the thousands of jobs advertised daily in major newspapers and the current reports of overall reduction in the unemployment rate. When workers blame their layoffs on the bloated earnings of corporate executives, they are not improving the situation. With this or any other issue, it doesn't help to bark up the wrong tree. Consider: rank and file workers often lament that their wages should be higher because it is their labor which enables their bosses to get rich. That being so, corporate execs would be foolish to let any of these workers go: indeed by the workers' own analysis the companies could not prosper after letting go of these workers; layoffs are often due to mergers of two companies in the same or related industry, done to increase efficiency and/or reduce competition. Now if there is demand to restore the lost competition, what prevents anyone from meeting that demand by setting up a new company in that industry? If on the other hand there is no longer a demand for the work done by certain workers, then these workers, if not laid off, would hold make-work "jobs" - something we all decry when done in the public sector.

If the business of business is to turn a profit for its owners, as well it should - whether the owners are a private family or thousands of small shareholders, then it behooves all business firms to hire only needed employees. Does anyone enjoy doing useless make-work which, by its nature, will cause the employer to go under before too long, thereby wiping out all the company's jobs in the process?

Most of us seasoned citizens have experienced at least one layoff which forced us to seek and land other work that turned out to be a better situation for us - the proverbial "blessing in disguise".

It seems peculiar that laid-off workers should be anxious to work for companies they view as unfair for paying their executives "obscene salaries". Being laid off gives these workers an opportunity to seek a better employer or, together with others, form a competing company structure more to their liking.

But perhaps the biggest irony in all the current moaning about layoffs is that companies are being asked and expected to do something few if any individuals would do - hire people just for the sake of providing jobs instead of to perform needed work. None of us, not even the most liberal among us, run our households and private lives this way.

For instance, very few of us average folks will hire someone to come do our laundry one day a week as our grandparents did, using old technology. At the current minimum wage this would be about $2000 a year, just for laundry. A good washing machine and dryer cost less than half that much and last over ten years. This is why we choose the latter option, practicing the same basic economics as the big companies.

Summing up: why would anyone want to work for a company that doesn't need him/her? When laid off, look for an employer who needs your skills, or join with others to start a "good" company, or become self-employed. In any case we shouldn't try to force an employer to hire us, via the government or a labor union, any more than we would want to be forced to hire anyone against our will and best interest.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

The people at the polling place were very understanding and helpful. I looked at the list of presidential choices, and asked if anyone had anything that would help an upset stomach, and was it too late to change from being a loyal Republican to being maybe a half-loyal Democrat. I voted for the guy at the bottom of the list, the one most likely to do our country the least damage, if he got himself elected.

The thousands of owners of mobile homes should be celebrating the rejection of Prop. 199, a vicious, greed-inspired idea quite clearly intended to give mobile home park owners the power to confiscate homes in their parks, by simply boosting rents beyond tenants' abilities to pay.

Considering our worsening national problems, I think the voting age should be lowered to about twelve. Reason No. 1, only a third of us take enough interest to vote, and most of that group seem to be less interested in safeguarding our nation's future than in promoting personal financial interest, or right-wing religious or anti-communist paranoia ideas.

Reason No. 2, unless we have a nuclear war that gets everybody at the same time, the 12 to 18 age group will be on this planet longer than the 18 and older group. Some of these 12 to 18ers may wind up in Congress, perhaps concerned enough to not want our country to go into a permanent $5 trillion bankruptcy.

Therefore, these 12 to 18ers should be exposed to ordinary, old-time adding and subtracting and multiplying, etc., as soon as possible, and kept isolated from computers, perhaps from the fourth grade to the eighth grade, because we didn't have a $5 trillion deficit, until a few years ago, when computers became popular, and "Seven Year Sweep the Problems Under Rug" solutions replaced reality and common sense.

My March 14 letter to Pres. Jiang Zemin (China), asking him not to take Pres. Clinton's war posturing any more seriously than absolutely necessary, probably had nothing to do with it, but I was pleased to see tensions eased in the Taiwan Strait. The Taiwan election is over, China is ending its posturing, and our forces are on the way back to Japan, which we now have to protect, on account of we beat them in World War Two. Yes, I know. I don't understand the logic of that, either, except that anti-communist paranoia is a prime factor in U.S. foreign policy.

LETTERS to the Editor

Let Us Stick to the Facts

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

A recent Herald editorial discussed how someone used ethnic slurs to harass a woman who wrote a letter which was supportive of Rancho San Carlos. In Bob Rehm's letter of March 25, Mr. Rehm disparages a letter writer for his supportive position regarding Rancho San Carlos. (The letter writer was questioning the reasonableness of the RSC petition drive.) On a personal note, I recently wrote a letter supporting the RSC plan and was contacted at home late at night. The male caller refused to identify himself, but his tone of voice and innuendo apparently were meant to try and dissuade me from my position. Attempting to bully someone into agreeing with you only leaves hard feelings, and is not effective communication. Using scare tactics as these people have been doing is even worse.

The failure of one side to tolerate the other side's position clouds rational thinking and makes me wonder about the righteousness of their whole cause. The Herald editorial rightly called for reasoned debate. I think that it is beyond time to attack issues, not people.

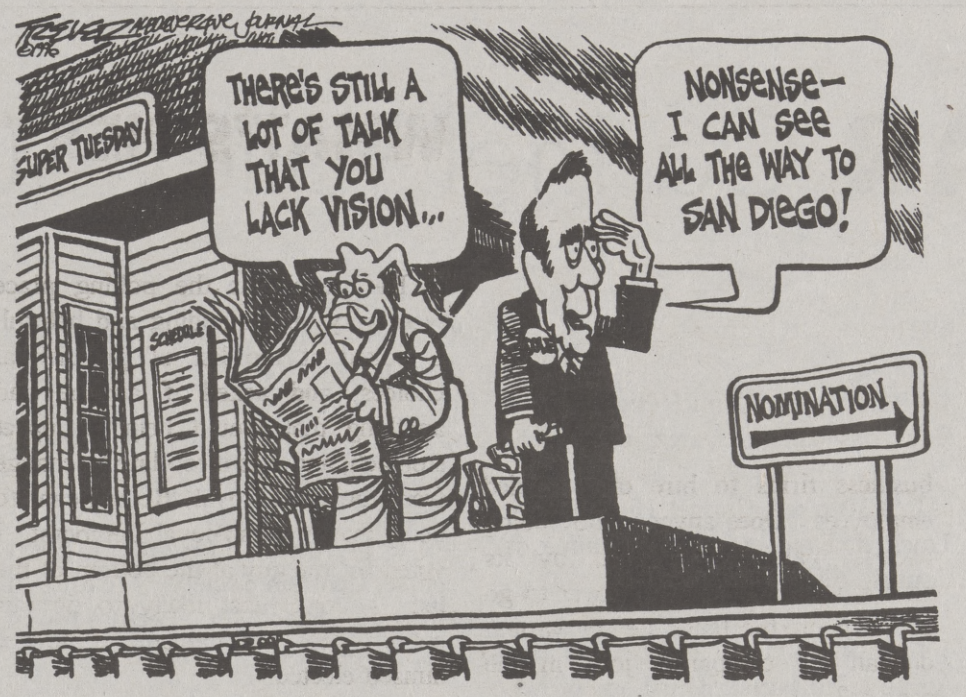
Objects to District Judicial Elections

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Once again, the shots in the battle of overturning the will of the people of Monterey County have been fired. Apparently, certain people have decided that Monterey County is not worthy of traditional elements of democracy such as electing public officials through majority vote - on which this country and its institutions were founded. The forces behind undermining countywide municipal court elections condescendingly believe that Monterey County voters are incapable of electing the most qualified candidate for judge.

These forces maintain that a certain number of judicial slots should be reserved for minority candidates. What is ironic is that these special interest groups seek to taint the judicial system - which is supposed to administer justice impartially and blind to race, color, creed, etc. - with inherently biased set aside programs.

It was partially due to my desire to combat such injustice and favoritism that I decided to run for Monterey County Municipal Court Judge. It was my sincere goal to be a judge elected by "the people". I am happy to say that my campaign got off the ground with enthusiastic support by individuals who were looking for an honest candidate untainted by political gamesmanship. I am eternally grateful to all those people for their sincere support and words of encouragement.



Although the forces responsible for the postponement of the elections surely hope that their actions have led to the derailment of this grassroots campaign, let there be no doubt. The fight for the heart and soul of this community continues unabated. I honestly believe that the tide has turned and that the democratic forces in this county will overcome the tyranny of special interest groups. I am confident that our efforts in the future will translate this latest setback as nothing more than the shallow victory that it is.

After the Election, But Still Good Thoughts

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Watch out for what David Potter says versus what he does.

Three people want our votes for Peninsula County Supervisor. David Potter, the contractor/politician, Jeff Davi, the developer's candidate and Alexander "Zan" Henson, the quality of life candidate. Potter has already shown us his votes would be the same as Jeff Davi's on significant growth and quality of life issues.

Mr. Potter voted for the Hatton Canyon Freeway (TAMC Jan. 26, 1994) the last time it was voted on, yet he claims to oppose the growth inducing freeway. The joke goes "What's the difference between Potter and Davi? - Potter has already voted for the Hatton Canyon Freeway."

Mr. Potter refused to sign the Rancho San Carlos petition. Yet he claims he does not support the subdivision without additional conditions. This action shows he has no interest in allowing voters to have a say in that gigantic 30+ square mile subdivision.

Mr. Potter says he is in favor of open space, yet he is one of the few elected officials who has already voted for the Pebble Beach lot program, exactly as Pebble Beach Company proposed it. The Memorandum of Understanding that he engineered through Monterey City Council (only Ruth Vreeland voted against it) would have the foreign owned Pebble Beach Company "give" the City of Monterey the old capitol site if...Pebble Beach Company gets everything they want in their lot program.

With this he voted to allow Pebble Beach Company to subdivide area 8 and put houses next to Rip Van Winkle Park in Pacific Grove. His vote also approved shoehorning a golf course into the rare and scenic Jeffers Forest. The 350+ 43 house project would also notably increase traffic on Holman Highway, in Pacific Grove and Carmel.

Mr. Potter tries to imply he has opposed the USGA Golf Museum on Monterey Beach. Yet a city memo dated July 28, 1994 reveals how Potter wanted to find some way to "sweeten the deal for the Golf Museum Project."

Peninsula quality of life activists have been tied up since October winning the campaign against the dam, and most recently collecting signatures to put Rancho San Carlos up for a vote. In these last two weeks of the campaign you can now expect to see those same 80-100 caring people working just as hard to support Alexander Henson. When Zan saw how the women petitioners were being stalked, followed and harassed he donated his legal services to successfully get Judge Silver to issue a restraining order against the strong arm tactics of the Ranch.

After Judge Silver issued the restraining order and the stalking, following and harassment of women continued (one young woman was so scared she was literally shaking and quit gathering signatures), Zan put his campaign on hold to pitch in and help us collect signatures. Mr. Potter is merely a rhetorical candidate, Zan is a real candidate.

As a Peninsula businessman of over 20 years who grew up here and has a long track record of working to protect our quality of life, I join Clyde Roberson and Bud Nunn in supporting Alexander Henson.

Douglas Pease

Will Rogers and Johnny Carson found abundant humor for their monologues in the daily news. Times haven't changed. We are six months into our nation's fiscal year and our leaders not only haven't formed a budget, they want us voters to do it for them after the fiscal year closes. Of all threats that could ruin the British government, it looks like mad cows will beat out the IRA. A Mr. Putnam has gained notoriety in intellectual circles by proposing our culture is on the way to ruin because there are fewer bowling leagues in America and people tend to bowl alone. The mayor of San Francisco doesn't want CalTrans to improve the flow of 70,000 cars a day by upgrading the freeway, he wants to tear it down completely. Now that the premier of China doesn't smoke, 300 million Chinese smokers may not light up in Beijing's public buildings. Any guesses as to how long it takes China to pass a budget?

Small wonder we are as uneasy about making investment choices as we are about voting: there is no way to be sure we are making a good move. For example, our investment club at the library hasn't been able to decide where to buy the stocks we may want to buy, much less decide upon the stocks themselves. It's not anybody's fault: the choices are staggering. This broker charges $25 a trade but won't accept less than $1000, that broker charges $15 a trade on the Internet but it may take a month to set up an account, another broker service charges $7 to start a stock purchase plan but it takes 8 to 12 weeks to settle a trade. Does the club want to invest in a high tech company, only to find a new breakthrough has rendered the product obsolete? Or is a giant tobacco company with an amazing history of continuous growth and profits a good choice at this time? Or should the members just pick a company that provides a product they use every day, and leave it at that?

It isn't hard to understand why 60% of the voters in our state didn't mark a primary ballot this year: the whole concept of leadership defies definition. It isn't hard to understand why our investment markets are in fibrillation: investors can't agree on a diagnosis. We have so many choices before us as we are pushed and pulled to act outside familiar patterns...it's easier to put things off another day and bowl alone.

Still, the Chinese would be the first to admit these interesting times present great opportunities; I bet Beijing shops are stocking more Wrigley's chewing gum and fewer cartons of Camels. Traffic stagnation in San Francisco may force the economic rebirth of Oakland. English customers may find they actually enjoy the veggie burger at McDonalds. American voters may discover they can be as effective in civic matters as government is supposed to be. And the stock our investment club finally buys will be in a company with recreational subsidiaries...sure, bowling alleys.

This is the best place in the world to live.

COMPUTER TALK

Val Healey

Part 4 - An introduction to computers at a naively simple level.

We have mentioned the word chip several times so far and will now explain a little more. A transistor is a speck of material, mainly sand, that has the remarkable property of being able to act as an electrical gateway. It has two positions, open when it allows an electrical current to flow through, and closed when it stops it. The invention of transistors was one of the most profound of this century. It is the basic building block of computers and, by replacing the incredibly inefficient electronic tubes in radios and tvs, has enabled us to design and build smaller, less expensive, and vastly more reliable appliances. A microprocessor is a chip, or small wafer, which nowadays can be much smaller than a postage stamp, with thousands, or even millions of these transistors built in. Some program - the software - needs to be loaded to enable the chip to perform any useful task and the chip itself is coupled via connectors and copper wires to the components it is intended to control. Today they are by the millions built into computers, appliances of all kinds, cars, etc.

A computer has many chips, the most important being the cpu one and the complexity of these chips is such that books could be written about them and still leave a lot unsaid. As it appears on the motherboard, the chip unit is typically about 2" x 2" and projects from the board by about 1/4". In most cases, and always in recent computers, the chip is removable. The chip has many characteristics but perhaps the most often quoted are the manufacturer's name, typically Intel, AMD and Cyrix, and the speed of operation. The earlier computers had a chip called the 8086 and this was followed by the 80386, 80486, and now the 80586. Usually the 80 has been dropped from the latter three which are now called 386, 486 and 586. The 386 is now considered very dated and seldom bought new. The 486 is still very much being constructed and will be around for a very long time to come. The 586 is now called the Pentium by Intel for patent or copyright reasons but is being continued by other manufacturers. The generic PCAT compatibles (compatible with the early IBM PC AT), which have the lion's share of the market today, frequently have designations like i386, (Intel 386, actually may be an Intel compatible - not necessarily made by Intel), i486, etc. followed by the speed designation. By making some appalling decisions IBM has relegated itself to a very minor player in the PC world, having dropped its market share from about 90% around 1985 to about 10% today. Some writers called this "self-immolation."

For example, i486-33, means that the chip operates at a speed of 33 megaherz (million oscillations per second). Generally, the higher this frequency the faster the computer will run - meaning that it will accomplish the same task in shorter times as the speed increases.

A further complication here is the use of SX and DX in the designations: i486SX-25 or i486-DX33. For now just take it that the DX is more expensive and better.

Mello Says No to Curbs in Salmon Take

Senator Henry Mello sent a letter to White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta urging the Clinton Administration to act quickly to temper the National Marine Fisheries Service's (NMFS) proposed 50% reduction in recreational and commercial salmon fishing.

The proposal by NMFS is designed to protect winter-run Chinook salmon on the west coast by reducing the harvest of that fishery. Mello's letter urges less drastic approaches to protecting the fishery and cites a fishing industry-sponsored proposal to increase size limits in order to reduce the take of winter-run salmon.

may be listening in," said SPCA spokeswoman Maia Carroll. "Harbor seal pups should begin arriving any day."

The harbor seal panel project, now in its third year, is a joint project between the Pebble Beach Company and the SPCA of Monterey county, and involves nearly a thousand Monterey County school children who paint panels and learn about harbor seals as classroom projects.

For more information about this project or how to participate, contact Gene Fryberger, the Pebble Beach Company, 625-8461 or Sheila McMahon, the SPCA of Monterey County, 422-4721 or 373-2631, ext. 222.
